

LOS ANGELES

MORNING BRIEFING

Katsuya's Chic New Look Shows a Little More of Hollywood's Glamorous Side

Plus a Jessica Koslow party and a new Downtown brunch

by Farley Elliott | Mar 3, 2017, 9:00am PST

Katsuya Hollywood | Katsuya

Inside the new-look Katsuya

Take a wander around inside the new-look Katsuya in Hollywood, which only revealed itself yesterday after a major interior overhaul. The long-running restaurant — it's been a mainstay in the area since 2007 — is now gleaming with lots of modern touches thanks to designer Philippe Starck.

The Katsuya revamp reveals a lot about Hollywood's sudden turn as a newly minted dinner destination worth getting dolled up for. There's already the staggeringly beautiful Gwen, with the slick and modern Birch anchoring Cahuenga. Meanwhile the Redbury hotel is turning into an upscale private club, and April Bloomfield's forthcoming restaurant is sure to be the best patio in town soon enough.